Foreword

There are places in this world, certain places, that are more dear to us than others—places which have been strongly cemented in our memories and deeply engraved upon our sentiments. It is these places to which we will fondly turn our minds, even after years of college, working, or marriage.

Where are these places, these FAMILIAR SPOTS? Through the pages of our 1959 Coronal you shall find them.

Particular spots have been the scenes of endless good times. Our athletic field, the baseball diamond, our tennis and basketball courts, where we have witnessed countless victories and defeats—the library, familiar scenes of our last-minute assignments, and pre-test cramming—our campus lawns on sunny days, sprinkled with students eating and relaxing—the familiar classrooms filled with undercurrents of untold secrets, forbidden gum and notes, of blank test pages and dreaded report cards—combined with the club meetings, the cokes and hamburgers at the Hi-Spot, the gym crowded with decorations and dancers, and the midnight oil spent on homework, to make 1958-59 another year which will never be forgotten.

Yes, a look around our campus reveals numerous FAMILIAR SPOTS, friends, and memories. As you walk through life continue to look for the things that may reveal new friends, and other Familiar Spots that lay waiting to be explored.

Dedication

Every time we have needed someone to help decorate or clean-up for a dance, set up an assembly, or food concession, open lockers when we have lost our locker keys, or dig out any long-lost decorations no matter what time of day, Mr. Tom Allen has always been there to help, full of patience.

One evening some of us were to serve coffee at the Corona Little Theater Plays. We had finished serving after the second act, but instead of doing the dishes then, we wanted to go back and watch the Third Act. Mr. Allen told us we could do the dishes when the play had ended. When the play was over, and we returned to our pile of dirty coffee cups, we couldn't find them. While we had been watching the play, Mr. Allen had done all our dishes!

This is just one example of how many little tasks Mr. Allen has performed for all of us during his years at C. H. S.

Led by president Dickie DelCastillo, the student council was unusually active. They met twice a week to take care of the many problems which arise at council meetings. The officers were elected last spring by the students and their selections proved to be outstanding in carrying out their duties.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with disabilities, with 1.5 million people with disabilities employed in the public sector in 1999, compared with 1.2 million in 1980.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities. One reason is that the public sector has a long history of employing people with disabilities. In the 19th century, the public sector employed people with disabilities in a number of different roles, including as clerks, typists, and stenographers. In the 20th century, the public sector continued to employ people with disabilities in a variety of roles, including as teachers, nurses, and social workers.

Another reason why the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities is that it has a number of advantages over the private sector. For example, the public sector is often able to offer people with disabilities a more stable and secure employment environment than the private sector. This is because the public sector is often able to offer people with disabilities a more predictable and stable income, and a more secure job.

There are also a number of other reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities. For example, the public sector is often able to offer people with disabilities a more flexible and adaptable employment environment than the private sector. This is because the public sector is often able to offer people with disabilities a more flexible and adaptable working schedule, and a more adaptable job.

As a result of these factors, the public sector has become an important employer of people with disabilities. In the 1990s, the public sector employed 1.5 million people with disabilities, compared with 1.2 million in 1980. This represents a significant increase in the number of people with disabilities employed in the public sector, and it is likely that this trend will continue in the future.

There are a number of challenges that the public sector faces in employing people with disabilities. One challenge is that the public sector often has a limited budget, which can make it difficult to offer people with disabilities the same level of support and resources as the private sector. Another challenge is that the public sector often has a limited number of jobs available, which can make it difficult for people with disabilities to find employment.

Despite these challenges, the public sector remains an important employer of people with disabilities. In the 1990s, the public sector employed 1.5 million people with disabilities, and it is likely that this number will continue to grow in the future. The public sector has a number of advantages over the private sector, and it is able to offer people with disabilities a more stable and secure employment environment than the private sector.

There are a number of ways in which the public sector can improve its employment of people with disabilities. One way is to increase the number of jobs available to people with disabilities. Another way is to offer people with disabilities more support and resources. The public sector can also improve its employment of people with disabilities by offering people with disabilities a more flexible and adaptable employment environment.

As a result of these efforts, the public sector can continue to be an important employer of people with disabilities. In the 1990s, the public sector employed 1.5 million people with disabilities, and it is likely that this number will continue to grow in the future. The public sector has a number of advantages over the private sector, and it is able to offer people with disabilities a more stable and secure employment environment than the private sector.

Senior

The senior year holds more opportunities than ever for participation in various activities. Many of the events will occur in one of the most familiar spots here at C. H. S. — the football stadium. It is the background for cadet corps, exercises, pep rallies, awards assemblies, for entertainment, and for the great SENIOR spell-out.

Activities

One of the things a senior anticipates is his place in the stadium—the stone bleachers. There he is the Bigwheel of the campus, without a doubt. This is his greatest year.

Let's Eat! — say the Senior Girls.

The annual Christmas Ball sponsored by the Hi Tri was held in the gym at 8:30 on December 20th. The theme was "Candy Cane Lane" and as the couples entered the gym they strolled down a Candy Cane Lane to the coat room. Then they danced under snowy white streamers to the varied music of the Top Hatters. Bubbling punch and delicious cookies were served as refreshments. The grand entrance of Santa Claus added Christmas spirit to the already happy atmosphere.

Christmas Ball

During intermission Sharon Dotson sang "Candy Cane Lane," Barbara Dye, Pat Westlake, Carolyn Davis, and Barbara Stephenson pantomimed "The Chipmunk Song," Judy Green, Kathy Kennedy, and Janet Higgins sang "Silver Bells" accompanied by Judy Gundlach; "Winter Wonderland" was sung by Rita Brooks, and Jimmy Bradbury sang the beautiful "White Christmas." When the lights in Candy Cane Lane went out, the dance was finished and the happy crowd left.

Nancy Foreman, Editor

Knowing that my High School years were coming to an end, I began to realize the importance of the familiar scenes about me. I wanted more than a mental picture to remember them by. I wanted something to keep with me always; so my staff and I adopted the theme "Familiar Spots".

This theme will have great meaning to all of us even though we're not all Seniors because what we now call "our C.H.S." will be replaced by a new one. The things and places that are now familiar to us will grow dim.

We hope this 1959 Caranal will help you remember them better; and I say "we" because it is by no means a one-man job carrying out a theme or putting an annual together. It is only through the constant help and cooperation of every member on the staff that our Caranal could ever have been completed.

Therefore, I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone individually.

P (Mr. Pauly)

Patient Mr. Pauly, our advisor and our friend. He helped us meet our deadlines until the very end. When in doubt he would advise, to make a change which turned out wise.

S (Steve Allen)

Serious Steve would get upset at times, but always had a smile or laugh for any funny lines.

J (Janice Hemphill)

Jaie De Vivre describes her well, far in living she finds joy, as everyone can tell.

K (Karen Elwaad)

Kind-hearted is this girl and very willing too; she did the work assigned her without too much ado.

C (Carol Schneider)

Cheerful, smiling Carol was ever so until, she had to write some captions; far her this was no thrill.

E (Eddie Harter)

Excellent is his art work and essential too; although many times discouraged, he always did come thru, and to him much credit is due.

D (Debbie Hollenbeck)

Distinctive was her way with words; difficulty she never had, arranging them to make same sense made us very glad.

M and M (Mary Harrell) and
(Anna) Marie Ter Maaten

Matchless are these two, far all the typing they did do, they're Masters of the Miscellaneous at a speed of "Instantaneous".

And now a special thanks to Ramas Studio and Yearbooks, Incorporated for their assistance too.

Addenda: Who was there when we needed her most?
who did the hard work with never a boast?
She was the girl with the Calgate smile;
A smile, a laugh, and even a grin,

She was the girl who got the deadlines in.
